Greetings to everyone!

If you have visited NSRCC recently and thought the frontline staff looked different, that's because they were attired with newly designed uniforms. NSRCC has changed the staff uniforms to make it more vibrant and comfortable. The last design change was done more than 6 years ago and you can catch the glimpse of your favorite staff with their new look on page 9! Why not get your favorite "Aunty/Uncle", "bros" and "sisters" to pose and instagram them?

Recent developments have affected our Club and NSRCC will undergo several changes to reconfigure our golf course and facilities. Please bear with us during the redevelopment as we work to make the Club a better place. I am pleased to inform you that there will be a new NSRCC smartphone app which you can download to access club's information conveniently.

We would like to congratulate all of our Service Excellence Awards winners. They have been recognised by our members for their good service. Turn to page 8 to find out who are the winners.

June holidays are just around the corner, the club has a list of exciting events and activities for you and your family to take part in. Let your child understand the concepts and logic behind the tricks and experiments in The Super Heroes Magic and Science Adventure. They can also attend the free Multi-Sports Trial Class organised by Sports4Kids where it allows your child to explore the fundamental skills and basic co-ordination of sports like basketball and soccer. If you and your family love durian, then take the opportunity to travel to Perkan Nanas Kampong and indulge in their Durians Buffet! Details and more information on page 19.

With so many things going on, I'm sure you and your family will have a good time at the Club!

Till the next issue! Cheers!

Bicycle Maintenance Workshop by Park Tool School

18 enthusiastic cyclists attended the Bicycle Maintenance Workshop on 1 – 2 March for the Basic Level and Advanced Level.

The instructors Dave and Andy from Park Tool School, brought with them 2 types of bicycles (A Mountain Bike and Road Bike). They also brought along 5 different types of stands and necessary tools.

During the workshop, the instructors explained more on how to choose and buy your bikes, bicycle stands and tools.

Safety is top priority in bicycle maintenance work.

The Basic Workshop also covered identifying parts of the bicycle and simple troubleshooting.

The Advance level was much more intensive and more hands-on. The class also included how to remove bicycle parts, assembling it back, tuning and adjusting to the correct pressure.

Warming up before the tournament starts

A Thrilling Day Out At Sea

Participants of the Northeast Monsoon Grand Prix 2014 Series 2 were treated with an almost ideal sailing condition when the regatta kicked off late morning on 15 March, Saturday.

The organisers were initially worried about the hazy and humid conditions that plagued Singapore two weeks before the event. Concerns were that it may dampen the racing outlook on race day. However, their worries were in vain as a change in wind direction offered the competitors with clear blue skies and excellent winds of up to 10 knots!

Out of the 38 participants that registered for the event, 20 of them were contesting in the Laser Radial class, while the remaining 18 competed in the windsurfing categories (RSOne 7.8, 4.0 Open and RSOne 5.5).

Laser Radial Senior Division

Former Olympic contender, Tracey Tan, enjoyed a fantastic day with multiple stellar wins out of the six races held, allowing her to comfortably secure the first spot on the scoreboards. Fighting tooth and nail for second place were James Tan and Daryl Goh. Their scores were separated by a mere few points throughout the regatta, but ultimately, it was James that took home the second spot, leaving Daryl with second runner-up.

Laser Radial Class

The battle continued tough and close between all of the sailors from the Youth Boys and Youth Girls divisions. In the Youth Boys division, Koh Yi Kun put some good results together and achieved a string of wins to take first place. Second and third place went to Matthew Scott Lau and Christopher Ang respectively.

RSOne 7.8 Open division

Ynez Lim appeared to be having her own race, leaving the rest of the windsurfers behind. She displayed superb techniques throughout the six races to take home first place, while Ruth Maw and Wilson Chai took the second and third places.

Here are the full results

President's Trophy

It was a sunny affair for golfers who turned up on 1st March to tee off for the first club event of the year - President's Trophy.

Enthusiastic golfers registering before the game

Participants competed based on four different categories, namely the Men's Division A, B, C and D; and the Ladies' Division A and B.

The golfers that took part had to endure the scorching sun! The weather did not get anyone down as they braved through the strong rays of sunlight in order to attain the prestigious Overall Winner title.

Following the game, golfers gathered to enjoy a hearty dinner at Jumbo Seafood Restaurant. President of NSRCC, LG Ng Chee Meng graced the dinner and also give away prizes to the deserving winners, as well as champions of the President's Trophy. Briefing Session on Land Acquisition & Mitigation Measures

On 26 April, Saturday, members of NSRCC gathered at the Club to be briefed on the Land Acquisition and Mitigation Measures.

The session was hosted by Chief of Defence Force, LG Ng Chee Meng, who is also the President of NSRCC. Together at the session included Mr Teo Eng Dih, Director Manpower, MINDEF/NSRCC Vice-President, BG Tung Yui Fai, Director National Service Affairs, MINDEF/Chairman, Strategic Review Committee and the General Manager of the Club.

In his opening address, LG Ng reiterated how Changi Airport's expansion and road works in 2014, will affect NSRCC's Air Force course and part of the executive golf course. Subsequently, part of the leasehold land occupied by Airforce and Army Course will be affected by plans to construct a new highway in 2018 and extend drain canals in 2024. The last day of play at the Air Force Course is scheduled to be on 13 July 2014.

It was also mentioned that despite the concerns arising from this, the Club will strive to maintain 18-holes playable and redevelop its facilities to reach out to the greater spectrum of NSmen.

L-R: Mr Ng Heng Chew (GM or NSRCC), Mr Teo Eng Dih (Director of Manpower, MINDEF and Vice-President of NSRCC), LG Ng Chee Meng (Chief of Defence Force, MINDEF and Club President of NSRCC)

In the meantime, recognising that our members may be inconvenienced during the redevelopment period, the Club will be implementing the following measures as a goodwill gesture:

GREEN FEES ADJUSTMENT

$15 reduction on green fee for 18-holes

$7 reduction on green fee for 9-holes

Effective period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2017

Up to 36 months free membership extension for existing and new members. Any active memberships that run through the intensive redevelopment period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2017, members will be entitled to 1-for-1 membership extension.

NSRCC will continue its efforts to complete the on-going strategic review and carry out the various implementations that are part of the redevelopment. Members will be updated on a timely manner as soon as details are available on these plans.

BG Tung Yui Fai, who chairs the Strategic Review Committee, mentioned during the session, that despite the re-alignment of the Club's services and facilities, golf will remain a major offering of the Club. NSRCC will also be expanding its social facilities that are family-centric and appeal to the younger generations of NSmen.

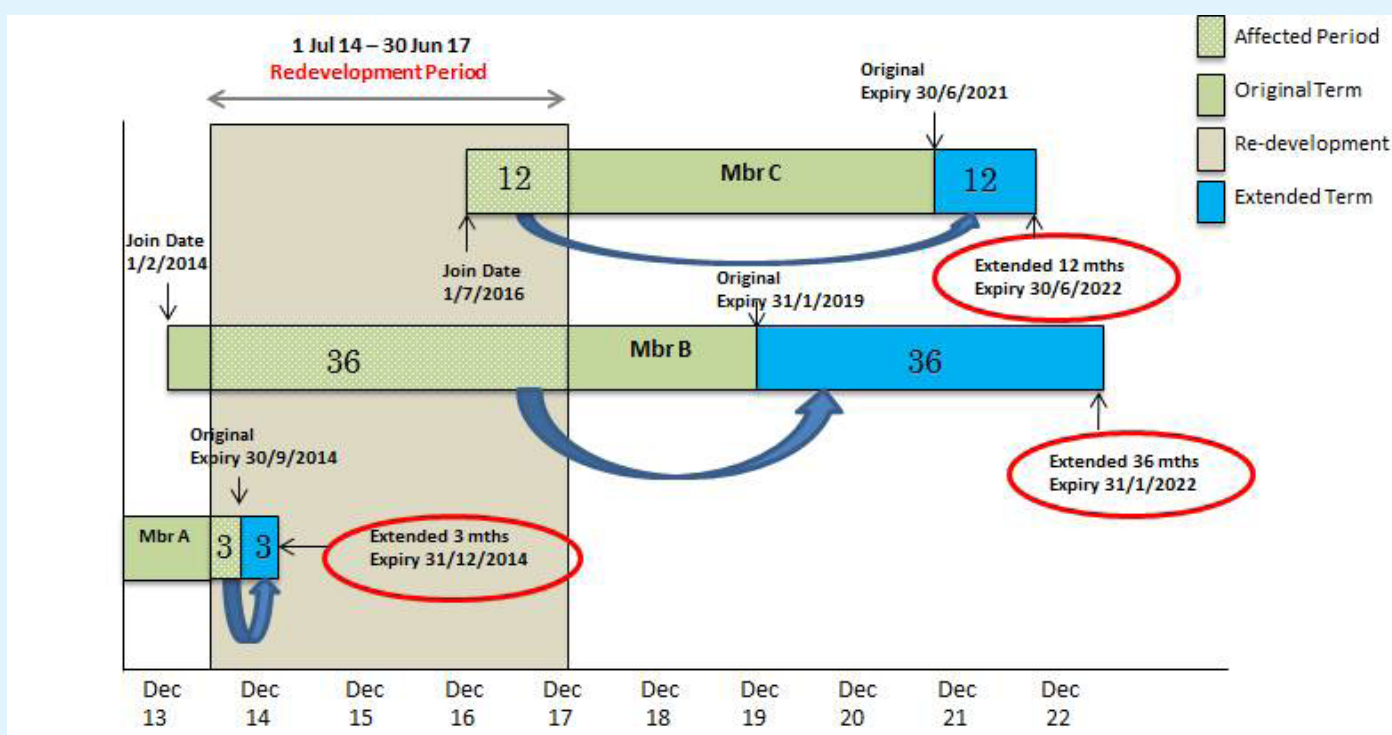

BG (NS) Tung Yui Fai, Director of National Service Affairs (MINDEF) and Chairman of Strategic Review Committee, reassured members that the Club will still enforce its vision in providing affordable club facilities for NSmen and their family

Local Rules of Golf

Local Rules are set by the Committee of a golf club to clarify the course marking (e.g. defining the boundaries of the course, ball drops, environmentally sensitive areas (ESAs) etc.) or to provide relief from local abnormal conditions that are not covered by the Rules themselves.

Rule 2: Dropping Zones

If a mat is provided in the drop zone, the ball must be placed on the mat.

Player is playing outside of the mat

The ball must be placed on the mat.

Local Rule 3: Immovable Obstructions

Immovable obstructions refers to hazard stakes, distance markers, tee signs, directional signs, young trees/plants identified by orange stakes or paint, halfway houses, rain shelters, pump houses, buggy paths and their related construction, lamp posts, sand containers, benches, control boxes, sprinkler heads, drainage sumps, manhole covers, safety nets, artificial linings embedded, wooden steps in bunkers and other artificial surfaces and constructions (except as declared as integral parts of the course).

Golfers are not allowed to remove distance markers during play

Instead, if the ball is not in a water hazard, golfers are allowed to take relief without penalty by dropping the ball within one club-length from the nearest point of relief

Internal Out of Bounds (OB) stakes are painted white on one side and black on the other. They are also defined as immovable obstructions in Local Rule 3.

Golfers are not allowed to remove these markers during play

They are allowed free relief if their ball is not out of bounds and the stake affects their swing or stance

Recognizing a Child's Potential

By Phil Brew

Just watched the final of the Drive Chip & Putt Challenge held at Augusta National, Georgia, literally days before the start of the US Masters. Wow! Now that was so cool on so many levels. The scenes were surreal, we had youngsters from 7 years of age to 15, who had qualified from their regions all over the country, a total of 88 finalists stepped up to the plate and performed in skills challenges such as Driving, Chipping and Putting. Players from the Masters field were there getting their final preparations for the first major tournament of the year and there were these kids with their parents at their side using the same facilities of the hallowed grounds of Augusta. Their putting challenge were conducted on the 18th green with the famous pin position of a Sunday Masters. These kids would have seen it on TV many times.

Past champions were there to lend a hand, Adam Scott helped out with presentations, Bubba Watson randomly approaching kids and their parents to wish them well. And then there was the standard of play from these youngsters. Oh boy, I was taken aback by their demeanour, the control they had over their mental and emotional states, their actions and reactions, their swings, techniques....amazing, truly amazing. As a coach of the game and the fact that my lifelong dream of playing at Augusta in The Masters was unfolding right before my eyes, I was in awe. Some of them were interviewed; the way they held themselves was simply awesome, maturity way beyond their years. They spoke with clarity, with a beautiful passion, totally engaged in the moment, and obviously this had a lot to do with the strong influence from their parents, they had developed such a love for the game.

Then it dawned on me, how does one see whether a child has that something special to excel in golf? How do we recognize it? To begin with, interest has to come from within the child. There is no point in pushing them into it. You can expose them early to see how they react to the game and during this trial phase, I suggest you observe from a distance. Don't crowd your child, give them space. One tip about that though – honestly, it is hard to get excited about golf from a Driving Range. It does not represent the essence of the game, it is merely a controlled environment to break the game up into pieces so we can teach it and you can learn it one piece at a time. The game is played outdoors in very interesting and different landscapes, so many variables that make the game challenging. Expose your child to the golf course and see how they react. If they show excitement, they're in it for life; if they do nothing but complain about the hot sun and how tired they are, you should probably look for another game for them to try, they may not be ready for golf just yet.

If you do see a spark, stoke the fire. I don't believe a child's potential revolves around how hard one pushes them to try harder. It comes from within them, if they love it, if they enjoy everything about it, the bonding time with mummy and daddy, the challenge of the game, they will be self-driven. Even as a coach we are always aware of this fact of over-teaching and not doing enough inspirational type of instructions. It is the quickest way to take the genius out of the youngsters to suffocate them in technique. They need inspiration and then guidance is something they will yearn for.

Having been teaching here in Singapore now for 15 years, I have had the fortune to see the personal development from young to adulthood. The ones that have really stepped up to the plate have had a quiet demeanour, a focus that would impress any world class performer and then because of their deep seated belief in themselves. The size of their dreams just keeps getting better and better. I think of Reagan Png. Reagan was 14 years old when I first met him back in 1999. I recall a playing lesson with him, Quincy Quek and a couple of other boys Glenn Lee and Eugene Seah, all organized by Mervin Gallistan, one of the instructors and SAFRA's Chief Marshal back then. They all played great. Reagan was the only one with a PC though, the others had handicaps. But something I saw that day about Reagan caught my attention. Even though he was outgunned by his friends, when he hit a poor shot you could see his discontent in his face in the form of a grimace, no anger shown above that. He wanted to play well so badly that although it killed him to hit lousy, it didn't bother him. Reagan turned pro 2 months ago, Quincy about 2 years ago. They both have a deep burning flame in their belly. That's what you need to excel, desire, lots of it.
